

Date	Guest Speaker	Workshop
28 March	To be announced
28 February	To be announced
31 January	Charlotte Moore Home Office researcher	The User Research & Design team at the Home Office exist to improve digital services offered by the government and specifically work on things like online passport renewals and visa applications. Their work involves talking to members of the public so they can find ways to make those services better for them. They're currently trying to build up their expertise and knowledge about people who have different kinds of accessibility requirements. Guest speaker, Charlotte Moore is leading research with people with dyslexia and would like to learn more about how dyslexia impacts on your ability to access government services.
2017
17 November	Adam Hyland	'Challenging the perceptions of disability and an insight into enabling technology'. Adam is a passionate and inspirational advocacy campaigner for Diversity and Ability, a social enterprise designed and led by, and for, neurodiverse (including dyslexia) and disabled learners in education and the work place.
25 October	Jack Trench Founder of award winning bespoke kitchen and furniture company Jack Trench Ltd	Thinking of starting up your own company? Jack trained in industrial design and worked in an architectural practice before launching his own company in 2003. Jack will be talking about the advantages and challenges of having dyslexia when setting up a company. Followed by open discussion.
27 September	Tim Urban	'Come Inside the mind of a master Procrastinator'. Screening of TED talk followed by open discussion.